

FAIRMOUNT WINS BY ONE POINT

Southwest Kansas College Defeated in Debate

SEVENTH ANNUAL MEET

Large Crowd Present at the
Toler Last Night

In the seventh annual intercollegiate debate between Fairmount College and the Southwest Kansas College of Winfield, held at the Auditorium last night, Fairmount won by one point. The judges were J. D. Millikin, of McPherson; J. H. Hill, of Emporia, and T. W. Conway, of Alva, O. T. Out of sixty-three points Fairmount received thirty-two and the Southwest Kansas College thirty-one. About 600 people attended the contest, and a more enthusiastic gathering of college people has not been seen in the history of this city. College yells were the first real indications of college spirit. The inevitable yell-out, and when the house was divided and Fairmount students, admirers and rooters were placed on one side and the Winfield College on the other, the antagonism indigenous to college life found vent. The "Eruh, Eruh, Rah," of the visitors was equally noticeable as the "Rah, Rah, Rah," of the Fairmounters.

At 8:20 o'clock President George F. Cook of the Southwest Kansas College of Winfield, was introduced as the presiding officer for the evening. Mr. Cook made a few opening remarks, stating that in his contacts these colleges had met and that out of the six debates each of the schools had won three victories. He also stated the question to be debated and then introduced Rev. A. P. Soland, who offered a brief prayer.

By this stage each college had its leader in front of their crowds and the purple of the Winfield college and the orange of Fairmount were hoisted high and sung about to the hearts' content of the students. The familiar old song, "Oh, Fairmount, Oh, Fairmount," etc., sung by the Winfield students was cheered and created a great deal of laughter. They sang in such a pitiful strain that it would seem to be addressing to their rivals. But Fairmount, with its straying qualities and cunning in times of emergency, got back at the visitors with an equally derisive and unmerciful anthem which would seem likewise effective in discouraging most anyone.

All kinds of noises were indulged in by the crowds of students and numerous hisses and actions bordering close on to the disquieting style of settling differences were in order. As is usually to be heard and seen at inter-collegiate contests of whatever nature the remarks uttered by both sides of the house were many of them almost ridiculous.

President Cook announced, after calling order, that the Women's Glee club of Fairmount College, would entertain the audience with a song, which was done with success. At the close of the song the audience showed its appreciation of the club by applauding long and loudly. The club then sang an encore which was fully as worthy as the first number.

The question which was debated is an all-important one. It was "Resolved, That combinations of capital, commonwealth, trusts, are detrimental to the public welfare." The speakers were as follows: Fairmount, Miss Sellers, Mr. Foster and Mr. Nelson, who had the affirmative, and Winfield, Mr. Whitton, Mr. Felton and Mr. Hoff, who had the negative. The debaters occupied opposite sides of the stage, and were seated in chairs which were decorated with college colors—purple and orange respectively. Midway between the contestants sat President Cook, and to the front of the stage was a table from the side of which the debaters orated.

The first speaker for the affirmative was Mr. Foster. He was greeted by Fairmount's yell. Mr. Foster proceeded immediately to lay the case before the "honorable judges" with the strategy and shrewdness of a lawyer. Mr. Foster contended that the trusts were harmful to the masses in many ways, and sustained his assertions by numerous allusions to the present existence of the industrial and economic conditions. He dealt on figures and brought out some interesting statistics concerning the past history of the trusts. His argument was presented

NEVER CONNECT THEM

Many Never Stop to Think
Thoughtless people don't connect coffee with their ails, but sometimes find out the real facts.

When I was a coffee drinker I used to have a routine head-ache about every two weeks lasting an hour at a time, also had palpitation of the heart all the time so that I could not sleep lying on my left side. I was told coffee was the trouble, but having used it all my life it was hard for me to give the habit up and so I would start again drinking it but with the same results always my old ails would come back without fail.

"Often I wished there was something to take the place of coffee which would not affect me and when Postum came on the market nine years ago I got some and prepared it according to directions. This was a little rest for me but when I tried just half the quantity it suited me perfectly, and I have been drinking it ever since."

"Once I visited a friend who invited me to supper and insisted on my drinking coffee, saying it would not hurt me. Just one cup! So I thought I would try little, but I had to pay dear for drinking coffee that evening. I was so nervous I could not sleep for hours and toward morning when I dozed off into a restless sleep was awakened by strangling jumps out of bed and had to expectorate two mouthfuls of blood, which was just like my old nosebleeds coming back."

"I had another experience but since then I have not taken another sip of coffee and have had no such trouble. Since I am using Postum I can sleep on either side without pain, have no more nosebleeds, the heart trouble has entirely left and I am strong, healthy and well."

"My husband who is bookkeeper for the L. & N. R. R. was troubled with nervousness so he could not draw a straight line but since he has quit coffee and used Postum his nerves are so steady and his accounts so neat he has got the nickname of 'The L. & N. R. R.ing Machine.'"

"My children will not drink any other beverage and you can not fool them for they can tell Postum from any imitation." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Dr. Lyon's PERFECT Tooth Powder

AN ELEGANT TOILET LUXURY
Used by people of refinement
for over a quarter of a century
PREPARED BY

J. W. Lyon, D.D.S.

In a calm, judicious manner. Upon closing he was presented with a large and beautiful bouquet of flowers by the Fairmount side of the house, and was applauded continuously.

After Fairmount's yell had ceased, President Cook announced the first speaker on the negative side, who was Mr. Whitton. This gentleman approached his subject matter like a Roman, and certainly demonstrated that he was not without some previous experience along the line of debates.

He frequently referred to the affirmative side in his talk, and, in the meanwhile, brought out some excellent facts and points for the negative. Although it could plainly be seen that a majority of the audience were anti-trust believers at heart, Mr. Whitton faced the situation bravely. With both sides of the stage bearing large portraits of William R. Hearst, having been placed there for the recent Democratic convention, who is such a determined trust fighter, and with the crowd believing that the trusts are really detrimental to the country, this young man stood there and presented points for the negative which had its influence and came near to gaining for Winfield the honors of the occasion.

The next debater was Miss Sellers, who did her part toward winning the honors for the affirmative side. Miss Sellers delivered her points in a style which was cheered and cheered by her side of the house. She dished out to the audience and the judges such a string of statistics and figures pertaining to the trusts that it would have required six mathematicians all night to have solved them. But this had its effect. Miss Sellers was not frustrated in the least, and in a womanly manner spoke with all the fervor and strength she could master for her side and for her college. She received the hearty plaudits of the audience at the close of her speech.

The president then introduced Mr. Felton on the negative side. Whether or not the audience was expecting it is a question to the skeptical, but Mr. Felton of Winfield deserves the credit of being one of the best orators on the program. His voice was strong and melodious. For a young man, he possesses more natural ability for public speaking than is commonly displayed at so early a stage in life.

Mr. Felton spoke plainly and brought out many good facts, and notwithstanding that he had been preceded by one speaker on the negative side who had spoken quite fully on the best points, he uttered a solid platoon of facts that won for his side much admiration and influence among the judges. He, too, was given a large bouquet at the close of his speech. The cheering was also very encouraging to him, as it was to the first speaker on the negative. Both sides were applauded frequently.

Two speakers on each side having spoken, the audience was called to listen to something along a little different line. President Cook then arose and stated that Miss Caroline Williams of the Southwest Kansas college would sing a solo. Miss Williams received an abundance of applause as she went onto the stage. The song was "The World is One," the most enjoyable feature of the evening and was highly appreciated by all in attendance.

Following this the third speaker for the affirmative, Mr. Nelson, was introduced. He also deserves the commendation of all and will doubtless get his just share of praise for his brilliant and logical argument. One of the most impressive points that Mr. Nelson presented, and which was shown to be unanimously accepted by the audience was his glowing tribute to President Roosevelt. He eulogized the great magistrate of his country to such an extent that the opponents were astounded. In an attempt to recover lost ground in relating his argument. Regardless of the substance of his argument, the name of Roosevelt carried with it sufficient weight to influence a whole jury, were it necessary. He also was cheered many times.

The next speaker was Mr. Hoff, who stood in line for the standard of the negative side and carried it through to victory. He was humorous in many of his assertions and said several very comical things which brought the audience down to laughter. As a last resort, he spoke of the beautiful homes of Wichita and made an endeavor to show that the residences of the common laborer who is in ordinary circumstances were as fine as those of the wealthier. He compared the present condition in this city to ten years ago and made quite a hit on this one point. Many cheers greeted Mr. Hoff.

Five minutes were then taken up by Mr. Nelson in a rebuttal for the affirmative. His remarks were chiefly along the lines of showing up to the judges the many points his side had brought out. At times he became so enthusiastic that he could hardly bring out his sentences which added strength to his assertions.

The next five minutes were given to Mr. Whitton, who made the closing remarks for the negative. He summarized all the argument his side had presented and performed the task in a very pleasing manner.

While the decision of the judges was being waited for, the Men's Glee club of Fairmount entertained the audience. They were cheered and received the upmost of applause in appreciation of their work.

Then as President Cook stepped to the front of the stage and announced that the judges were ready to report, the audience was in a suspense and stillness prevailed. The boisterous college yells which had a few moments before almost deafened the audience were stilled. Every eye was turned to the front. When Mr. Millikin was introduced the fall of a pin could have been heard in any part of the house. But the moment he finished, "and in behalf of the other judges I wish to state that Fairmount has been given more points than the Southwest Kansas college out of sixty-three points," the audience went wild. For several minutes the "Rah, rah, rah" of Fairmount resounded throughout the corridors of the auditorium.

When attention could be secured, President Cook stated that a reception would be tendered the Winfield delegation immediately at the Plymouth church. At this event the college rivalry died away and all was peace and harmony. Refreshments were served and a splendid time was had by all. Most assuredly the Southwest Kansas college may be satisfied.

JUDGE OVERRULES THREE MOTIONS

Objections of Defense Are Not

SECOND TRIAL ARSON CASE

Call Issued For Twenty Jurymen.

The second trial in the case of the State versus S. M. Stevens, for attempted arson, was commenced in the district court yesterday morning. The morning session was taken up with the argument of three motions offered by Adams & Adams, for the defense, but which were finally overruled by Judge Wilson. The afternoon session was taken up with the examination of the jury.

The first motion filed when the case was called was to withdraw the charge of "not guilty" which the defendant had made in the case and file a motion for abatement. The defense contended that the complaint was filed in the case was in error and that in the complaint of the insurance companies that Stevens was charged with attempting to defraud were mentioned in one place as insurance companies and in another as corporations.

The next motion made was to quash and set aside the information and dismiss the case; also to release the defendant on the grounds of error in both the warrant and the information.

After these motions had been argued and finally overruled, the defendant filed a motion for a continuance, stating that several material witnesses for the defense were not in the city at present. Two of these witnesses, it is claimed by the defense, would testify to the fact that they saw Mr. Stevens and another man get off of the car at the corner of Main and First streets on the night of January 1, 1903. Another witness, who formerly was in the employ of Mrs. Stevens, would testify that there were only two keys to the store, and that one was carried by Mrs. Stevens and the other by one of the employees.

The argument of this last motion extended into the afternoon session, and when it was overruled by the court, the work of empanelling the jury was commenced. This examination will possibly continue through the greater part of today, and it is thought that the evidence will not be begun until Monday.

The case is one in which Mr. Stevens is charged with attempting to burn his wife's millinery establishment for the purpose of defrauding the insurance companies. The first trial took place in February, 1904, and resulted in a hung jury, there being six in favor of acquittal and six in favor of conviction.

Owing to the number of regular jurymen who have been excused this term, it was necessary yesterday to issue a call for twenty names in order to fill out the regular venire. The following are the names on the new list who are to report this morning at 9 o'clock:

G. W. Bannon, Rockford; W. E. Brooks, Park; Leonard Ayers, city; A. C. Richards, city; H. C. Heyer, Ohio; C. W. Gackenback, city; E. R. Barrett, city; O. S. Yazel, Lincoln; Charles Joseph, city; J. M. Dugan, Waco; J. W. Porter, Viola; J. S. Little, Erie; J. E. Whaley, city; B. C. Evans, Lincoln; Bruce Manamee, Eagle; R. Newman, Keith; Adam Everts, Union; John Walker, Morton; John Willcox, city.

FRIENDS AND WINFIELD.

Ball Game Will Be Played on Hess Field Today.

Today the Southwest Kansas college baseball team from Winfield will meet the Friends university baseball team on the Hess athletic field, at 3 p. m. The Southwest Kansas college team is composed of a strong bunch of players, much stronger than they were last year, and the people of Wichita know how they were then.

The Friends team will be much stronger than ever, the strongest the university has ever had. Their battery will be composed of Davis, "the marvelous twirler," and McCully. Young will hold first base, while Hink will hold second. Shortstop will be held down by McGill, who will pick them all up that come anywhere between second and third bases. Jones, who will hold third, needs no recommendation, as all Wichita knows his playing. The fields will be held by Thompson, Boone and Loomis.

W. E. Sands, the advertising manager of Buckskin Bill's Wild West Show, is in the city with the advertising car, distributing literature giving dates for this interesting combination which will be in Wichita on the 25th of this month.

NO MORE DANDRUFF.

Newbro's Herpicide Destroys the Pestiferous Cause of Annoying Dandruff.

Does your head itch? Is your coat or dress full of white flakes after dressing your hair? That's the effect of dandruff. Is your hair thinning? Are you beginning to get bald in spots? Are you already, in fact, rapidly becoming bald? If so, that is the effect of a meanly little parasite that burrows in at the root of the hair, and throws up the scalp in dandruff and eats off the hair at the root. Science's latest discovery is a destroyer of that pestiferous germ. That destroyer is contained in no other hair preparation on earth but Newbro's Herpicide. Try it, and be convinced. A delightful dressing, sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. Moore Drug Co., special agents.
